RECREATION

Fund Raising Body Proposed

Do residents want a central body to handle all money raising activities in the center?

This and similar questions will be taken up 7:30 tomorrow night at the 69-6 courtroom building when the proposed organization of a recreation cooperative will be discussed at a public hearing.

The hearing is directed by the recreation commission of the Butte Council headed by George Kanagaki and is authorized by the Council.

Kanagaki stated that any Butte person or group wishing to express his opinion concerning the proposed recreation co-op is welcome to bring suggestions and recommendations.

CHURCH COUNCIL ASKS CLARIFICATION IN MIXUP

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America did not make the resolution proposing bombing attacks on Shinto shrines in Japan and wishes to make a public disclaimer of any connection whatever with the resolution.

The resolution in question was recently printed in the Utah Nippo and the Rocky Mountain Shinto and was interpreted as coming from the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, and so was erroneously concluded that it represented the main body of American Christians.

Actually, however, the resolution was announced by an organization calling itself "The American Council of Christian Churches", which was recently organized by a small group of ultra-Fundamentalists.

VEGETABLE FARMING GOOD IN COLORADO DISTRICTS

About 20 to 25 families can be absorbed in a good vegetable farming district in the southeastern section of Colorado near the border of New Mexico,

MORE PHYSICALS NEXT MONTH

Pre-induction examinations for the next group of Gilians will probably be held on April 2, stated Henry C. Freeland. The first group finished their examinations last Sunday.

If any individual wishes to make an appeal from his classification, he must write directly to his local board in California giving the details and reasons for his appeal. The appeals should not be made to the Phoenix board, said Freeland.

stated Harry Miyake, who returned this week from a two week visit to Denver, Ogden, and Salt Lake City regions.

He plans to go out to Colorado sometime this month. Truck farming in that region includes sugar beets, peas, onions, and other vegetables.

Miyake believes that evacuees can help on the home front by producing essential food products while other evacuees are fighting on the war fronts.

There are possibilities of farming in southern Utah too, he said. The soil is good there. Fear that work will last only six months and farmers will have to loaf the rest of the year is not necessary, he said, because in most places there is plenty of work by day or by week in practically any line of defense work such as railroads.

Most farmers welcome good California farmers, but for the protection of the future it is best not to congregate in overcrowded districts, he said. There are plenty of new districts that can still be developed. If others can do it, evacuees can too.

FIRE BURNS BUILDING, PROPERTY WORTH $13000

A fire of undetermined origin destroyed $13,000 worth of property Sunday morning, when the parts warehouse in block 19, containing tires and automotive parts, burned to the ground.

The warehouse building, valued at $1,000 and about $12,000 worth of equipment is a total loss except for some bolts and some steel, stated John C. Doucha, chief of operations.

The fire, which was first discovered at 6:43 a.m. Sunday morning, was well under way and it was impossible to determine how it started, Doucha said.

At the same time there was power interruption at the pump house, and although it had been corrected just prior to the discovery of the fire, there was not enough water to extinguish the flames. The fire seems to have started somewhere in the middle of the building, Doucha said.
